Thursday, September 24. 1719.

From the Amst. Courant, dated Sept. 30.

Warsaw, September 16.

THE Nobility of the Palatinate of Masovia assembled here on the 10th Instant, in order to choose Deputies for the Tribunal of the Kingdom from among their Body, and as none of the Senators had appeared, they desired the Starosta of Czechanow to preside in their Deliberations for choosing a Marshal, which he did accordingly; but M. Zielinsky being proposed by some, it was immediately opposed by others, who protested against his Election, and thereby the Assembly was dissolved. Some Letters from Lithuania say the Nobility are forming a Confederacy, and that already in several Starosties they have seized the King's Servants, which may prove of bad Consequence. On the 3th Instant Bonfires and Fireworks were publicly made at Wilda, in Rejoicing for the Electoral Prince of Saxony's Marriage with the Archduchess: But such Disorders arose on that Occasion, that several Persons were killed in a miserable manner; some were burnt by the Fireworks, others were drowned in the River Wilia, and others stifled and trodden down in the Throng.

Vienna, Sept. 16. Count Schonborn, Vice-Chancellor of the Empire, seeing his Election to the Bishoprick of Wirtzburg opposed by the Pope, who bears him ill Will for having been very active against him some Years ago in the Affair of Comacchio, desisted from his Pretensions in Favour of his elder Brother, the Provost of the Cathedral of Mentz.

From the Amst. Courant, dated Sept. 28.

Dresden, Sept. 18. The Carrousel which was performed some Days ago was a Representation of the 4 Elements. The King, to whose Lot fell the Fire, had a Coat of a fiery Colour enriched with Diamonds, the Clasp of the Feather he wore on his Head, was set with Diamonds of a great Value, and even his Armour was adorned with Jewels: The King's Troop had Dresses of the same Colour with his, and carried in their Hands artificial Flambeaux. The Electoral Prince represented the Water, being dressed in blue; those of his Band had Tridents in their Hands, and Fishes on their Helmets. The Prince of Weissenfels with his Troop representing the Earth, were in green Dresses, each holding a Branch of a Tree, with Flowers on their Helmets. The 4th Troop which represented the Air, was headed by the Duke of Wirtemberg, having Birds on their Heads, and Wings on their Shoulders. Each of those Troops was preceded in their March by a Herald at Arms, attended by 12 Trumpeters and a Kettle-Drummer, then came a Quarry followed by 16 Led Horses led by Grooms; the 16 Knights attended by 16 Footmen, who carried the Lances, and 16 others who carried the Javelins; 16 Adventurers, (as they were called) with their Leaders in the Middle, attended by 4 Footmen. On the 16th, the King, the Prince and Princess, went a Hunting to Polnitz, where a new Hunting House has been built; after having killed 6 Stags, they dined there, and returned hither in the Evening. Yesterday the King gave a great Entertainment in the late Electress Mother's Garden; his Guards were dressed like Janizaries, and the Officers and Servants who attended, were in Turkish Habit: In the Afternoon the Watermen performed a Fight on the Elbe, after the Manner of the Gondoleers at Venice: In the Evening they shot at the Mark by the Light of Flambeaux; and at Night there was a great Ball at the House in the King's Garden, which lasted till 3 a Clock in the Morning. This Day the Court is to take the Diversion of a great Hunting Match, to be performed on the Elbe in Boats.

Copenhagen, Sept. 23. ' Some Days ago, the King and the Prince Royal passed over to the Island of Hoen or Ween, situate in the middle of the Sound, and viewed the Place where stood formerly the Castle of Uranienburg, with its famous Observatory, built by the celebrated Mathematician Tycho Brahe, to whom King Frederick II. of Denmark made a Grant of the Ground, with a yearly Pension; but he some time after being fallen under the King's Displeasure, that Building was demolished, and has ever since lain in Ruins. The Island itself which is very small, was afterwards together with the Province of Schonen, yielded to the Crown of Sweden, from which it has been taken again last War. There is no further Talk of the King's Journey to Holstein, or any other Part of Germany. Count Schack died here Yesterday, after a lingering Sickness: By his Death the chief Place in the Chamber of Finances is become vacant. The Government of the Island of Rugen, and the Danish Part of Pomerania, vacant by the Decease of General Dewitz, who lately died in the Isle of Fuhnen, has been conferred by the King on General Scholten. Rear Admiral Tordenschiold continues with his Squadron before Gottenbourg, to cover M. Judiker, who is busy in recovering the Ships and Cannon which the Swedes sunk when they abandoned Stromstadt, but there is no Likelihood of his continuing the Blockade of that Harbour, the Season being too far spent. No Orders have been issued as yet for calling in our Privateers. Dysenteries reigning very much in this City, the Government has prohibited the Importation of all sorts of Fruits by Sea or Land. Two Expresses from Sweden have brought Advice, that the Russians have left that Coast, retiring with their Men of War to Revel, and with the Gallies to Abo.

From the Harlem Courant, dated Sept. 30.

Hambourg, Sept. 26. The Duke of Holstein has sent Orders to his Ministers remaining in Sweden, to represent, That it is Matter of great Surprize to him to hear, that the Title of Royal Highness has been refused to him, whereas he is of a Royal Family, and his Mother and Grandmother have been King's Daughters, in which Case it is a Custom established in the Empire, that Princes of such Birth assume the said Title, which he has the more Ground to pretend to, inasmuch as he is Sovereign Duke of Sleswick, and has a Right to the Crown of Sweden, that cannot be taken from him.

him by the Vote of some of the States, nor he thus let slide; which hard Usage he meets with very undeservedly, considering what Misfortunes have befallen him on the Account of Sweden.

From the Hague Courant, dated Sept. 29.

Amsterdam, Sept. 27. By Ships come from the North-Sea it is advised, that the Swedes having put the Castle of Elfsburg near Gottemburg in a good Posture of Defence, are under no Apprehension from the Danes, though the latter continue to block up that Harbour with 5 Men of War, without permitting any Merchant Ship to pass. Part of the Swedish Forces which encamped near Gottemburg, are marching towards Stockholm. Colonel Danckwert, late Governour of Mälstrand, has received Sentence of Death at Gottemburg, and the Officers who served under him shall have their Swords broke before their Faces by the Executioner, and be turned out of the Service with Infamy. Captain Norcross the famous Pirate, has likewise been condemned to be hanged with his Lieutenant. Five Swedish Gallies have taken near Cælsund a Danish Transport laden with Provisions, two Prahms and one Galley.
